

We Are the Storytellers

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: April 21, 2026

Michael Jenet
Journey Institute Press
(303) 906.9988
publisher@journeyinstitutepress.org

A Different Kind of War By Edward W. Wood, Jr.

Denver, CO: April 21, 2026. Wordbinders Publishing, an imprint of Journey Institute Press, today announced it has acquired the World English Rights to A Different Kind of War from the Literary Estate of Edward W. Wood, Jr. A Different Kind of War is a novella about the liberation of Chartres Cathedral during WWII. Wood narrates the progress of Company A as it makes its way across France to confront the German army as they converge at Chartres. This novel explores the horrors of war, the moral dilemmas of a conscientious objector, and the urge for revenge by the victors.

Journey Institute Press Publisher, Michael Jenet, commenting on the upcoming publication said: “We are excited to be working with the Literary Estate of the late Edward Wood Jr. on the forthcoming publication of his book. It is rare to find an accomplished author writing about WWII who was there and lived the experience. Though a work of fiction this book lives and breathes with Mr. Wood’s experience and takes the reader along for the ride. We look forward to bringing this unique work to audiences across the globe.”

Edward W. Wood, Jr. is the author of three non-fiction books, a self-published prose poem, and short stories, poems, and essays published in War Literature and the Arts, Friends Journal, Many Mountains Moving, Parabola, Western Friend, Flaunt, among others. He is one of the featured men in the award-winning documentary The Good Soldier. Mr. Wood was a guest lecturer at the peace studies program at Colorado College and Regis University's Study of the War Experience program. He was badly wounded in WWII and was a city planner before turning to writing full time in the 1980s.

#####

About Journey Institute Press:

Journey Institute Press is a non-profit publishing house created by authors to serve burgeoning authors whose stories otherwise might not be told. Publishing across multiple genres, imprints of Journey Institute Press cover nonfiction, fiction, education, children’s, business, and self-help categories. Journey Institute Press is headquartered in Colorado and can be visited online at journeyinstitutepress.org.